DAUGHTER GIVE ME WATER

When Jessica was only five
She was daddy's darling little daughter
When daddy came home she would scream
"daddy", run and hug me

In those days, when I came home
First thing I used to say
"Daughter, give me water"
Jessica would run and Get me glass of water

One day she asked "daddy why me?, Why don't you ask BHAI (my son) to give you water"
"Daughter, when you give me water, it tastes delicious" I replied

One day when I came home, she was upstairs
When she came downstairs she saw me drinking water
She rushed to me and said "daddy don't drink that water"
"why?" curiously I asked
"I have not touched it daddy it would not taste delicious, Let me touch"
She touched my glass of water and said
"Daddy now drink, it will taste delicious"

On that day I tasted world's most delicious water
No one's touch has made or will make my water delicious
